

It's On Us Campaign: Student Leadership Involvement

On Friday, September 19th, the White House, the Center for American Progress's Generation Progress, and a wide range of stakeholders, include leading college sports organizations, entertainment companies and content creators, and student leaders from across the country, launched "It's On Us," a new public awareness campaign aimed at engaging students and campus communities in helping prevent sexual assault at colleges and universities. As part of the launch, in coordination with the National Campus Leadership Council, student leaders from nearly 200 colleges and universities across the country signed on to bring this campaign to their campuses and take action.

Since Friday, that list has grown by more than 30 schools and there are now 233 schools signed up. Below is a full list of the colleges and universities whose student body leaders have committed to being part of It's On Us:
