Dear Ms. Espinel,

As a professional photographer and creator of images I am deeply concerned about the protection of copyright for my creative work. Without this protection both my intellectual property and my lively hood are a stake. My family should be able to take advantage of my work once I pass away and without legal protection to this work, they will be effectively be left without my legacy and the ability to use this work for their own benefit. I write to you to ask you and President Obama's Administration to continue your support of creative ideas and its legal protection. Thank you.

Regards,

Jaime
