Dear Ms. Espinel,

I work for a company where I create all the names of our brands and even wrote a storybook for one of the brands and my company refused to let me put my name on it as author and refused to let me have a little bit of the profits. They said I get a pay check each week and anything I write or invent belongs to them. I do not think this is fair especially if it brings in millions.

Thank you for listening and considering this common dilemma in the work place.
